REPORTED ASSASSINATION OF JAPAN'S MINISTER OF FINANCE

COSSACK'S BEAUTY REVELS IN MUD ROYAL HIGHNESS WINS JOCKEY CUP DONOVAN CAUSES SURPRISE

The failure of Night Star and Harvest View, two hot favourites, to place provided the main features of the five races before tiffin at the Valley to-day. Despite very heavy rain and a track that was almost under water, there was only one substantial dividend — $50.70 by Royal Highness (Mr. Cheape) for his meritorious win in the Jockey Cup.

There was a very fair attendance before tiffin and the racing was always interesting. Mr. Frost had two wins and a third in four starts, while Mr. Wong, who brought Cossack's Beauty home for an easy win in the Ladies' Purse, had a win and a third in three starts.

RECORD FOR MR. DUNBAR

NINTH WIN IN SUCCESSION?

Mr. John Peel's Mark
Shattered

A DIP INTO THE PAST

(By "RAPHER")
Mr. L. Dunbar, who has been the leading owner of China ponies in Hong Kong for several years past, is almost certain to win the Champion Stakes this afternoon for the ninth successive year!

Liberty Bay, the only unbeaten pony in training, excepting new ponies, is expected to win to-day's event in a canter and thus annex the handsome prize for the fourth year in succession—another local record.

Mr. Dunbar's record is an unequalled one in the annals of racing in Hong Kong. Mr. John Peel, who won the event on eleven occasions, had five wins in succession with Conqueror (2), Mistletoe, Tioga and Orlando from 1885-9, and the only other owner to win this classic three times in succession was Mr. Paul—with Tajmahal, Prejudice and Rose in 1882, (Continued on Page 9)

STOP PRESS

8-400 P.M.—THE CHAMPION STAKES—A Sweepstakes of $100 each for Starters with $3,000 added for Winner. Second: $1,000. Third: $500. For China Ponies. Winners of a flat race at this Club's Extra Race Meetings held during the second half of the 1935 season, and/or at this Meeting only. Weight for inches as per scale. Ponies to be ridden by Jockeys who have won at least 10 Official flat races anywhere, or Jockeys approved by the Stewards. POST ENTRIES, One and a Quarter Miles.

L. Dunbar's Liberty Bay 161 lb. (Mr. L. G. Frost) 1
Dynasty's King's Warden 161 lb. (Mr. F. Marshall) 2
Hem's Macaroni 161 lb. (Mr. V. V. Needs) 3 7 starters.
Won by: — Many lengths, five lengths.
Time: — 2:43.2
(No betting on Liberty Bay).
Parimutuel, winner, $5.30, place, 1st $5.40.
Other results will be found on page 4.

The fourth day of the Annual Race Meeting opened in dismal weather, a heavy shower falling just before the start of the Leighton Hill Stakes, which attracted 15 starters.

Mr. Marshall got Hopscotch, the favourite, away to a good start and managed to hold him home, despite the close attentions of Celebration Time (Mr. Pote-Hunt) and Stopwatch (Mr. Li) in the home straight. Stopwatch, which was not on his toes at the start, did well to beat Cassius, which was always in the running, for third place. Shamrock was fifth.

VANDERBILT CASE

Another Petition To Appeal Court

Washington, To-day.
Mrs. Vanderbilt has filed an appeal to the Supreme Court to grant her the sole custody of Gloria. The petition declares that the New York Court order is "unprecedented and extraordinary and condemns the child to an abnormal life, in which she will be submitted back and forth weekly like a tennis ball."

A message dated December 4 stated that Mrs. Vanderbilt's fight for the custody of her daughter Gloria would be taken to the Supreme Court, according to an announcement of her lawyers, following refusal of leave of appeal by the New York State Court of Appeals. The appeal would be made on the plea that the ruling of the lower court was unconstitutional.

NEXT IMPERIAL CONFERENCE

Opportunity Falls
Next Year

London, To-day.

Although the Dominions Secretary, Mr. Malcolm MacDonald, stated in the Commons yesterday that no arrangements regarding the date of the next Imperial Conference had yet been made between the Governments concerned, he added that the possibility of holding a Conference in Britain in connection with the Coronation ceremony, to take place in 1936, would be borne in mind. (British Wireless Service).

ITALIAN PLANES ACTIVE

Italian Reply To British Note

Rome, To-day.

Intense activity on the Eritrean front is reported in Marshal Badoglio's communique, especially by the air force, which is bombing the enemy south of Amba Alagi and in Tembien.

A brief note replying to the British Note sent on February 13 regarding mutual assistance in the Mediterranean says that Italy reserves the right to bring up the matter in the place and manner she deems most appropriate. (Reuter's Bulletin Service).

FOOTBALL "WAR"

NORTHERN CLUBS
UP IN ARMS

"LEAGUE ACTION ILLEGAL"

ALTERATION OF FIXTURES CONDEMNED

London, To-day.

A number of northern clubs threaten to seek an injunction to restrain the Football League from delaying the publication of fixtures. They contend that the League's action is illegal as the rules say that the fixtures must be arranged at or prior to the annual fixture meeting, and alteration is only allowed—at the annual or a special meeting. Also any alteration must be circulated to the clubs at least a week before the meeting.

Many representatives of the clubs who supported the League's decisions are reported to have been repudiated by their own directors. (Reuter).

SHROVE TUESDAY AGAIN CELEBRATED

Pancake Tossed At Westminster

London, To-day.

Westminster School celebrated its annual Shrove Tuesday yesterday, in which a large pancake is tossed from a frying-pan by the Head Prefect. Nineteen boys took part in the scramble.

The one to retain the largest piece of the cake is presented with a new shilling by the Dean. (Reuter's Bulletin Service).

HONG KONG HOTEL FIRE

Snack Bar Badly Damaged

POSSIBILITY OF SERIOUS CONSEQUENCES

A fire which might have had very serious consequences broke out about 4.30 this morning in the Snack Bar of the Hong Kong Hotel, caused by the fusing of the motor of the refrigerating cabinet.

The alarm was given from outside and the Fire Brigade were quickly on the scene, but, pending their arrival, the outbreak was tackled by the hotel staff with the fire appliances on the premises. It was about 5.40 before all danger was finally at an end.

The Snack Bar is in the old part of the building, which is not of reinforced concrete construction, so that the hotel may be said to have had a very fortunate escape.

SPAIN'S FOREIGN POLICY

To Continue As Before

Madrid, To-day.

Foreign policy under the Left Wing Government will remain unchanged within the framework of the League, according to a statement issued by the Foreign Minister. (Reuter).

Mr. Lew Reidy, left, the best trainer in the Colony, and Mr. Percy Tester, a Steward of the Jockey Club, photographed at the Valley yesterday. (King's Studio).

EMIGRATION TO AUSTRALIA

Nothing Definite Decided

Canberra, To-day.

Mr. J. A. Lyons, Premier of Australia, stated yesterday that the report that a British Mission would be appointed to investigate emigration to Australia was premature, as nothing definite would be decided until preliminary conversations between him and Mr. E. C. G. Page, Minister for Labour and Industry, had taken place. (Reuter's Bulletin Service).

BOARD TO BE SET UP

London: It was announced in the Commons yesterday that the Government propose to set up an Overseas Settlement Board and Central Committee on overseas settlement. The Board, which will consist of three official and five unofficial members under the chairmanship of the Parliamentary Under-Secretary for the Dominions, Mr. Douglas Hacking, will consider and advise upon specific proposals for schemes of migration within the Empire. The Committee, which will be constituted later, will undertake day to day administration and co-operation between the Government and voluntary organisations.

GENERAL STRIKE OF AIRMEN

Threatened Outbreak
In Paris

"CHINA MAIL" SPECIAL

Paris, To-day.

A general strike of all French civil aviators is foreshadowed in the Paris Soir, which reports that the well-known flier Sadi Lecoq has been charged by the civil aviators to approach the Air Ministry with the demand for a withdrawal of the 10 per cent cut in salary recently imposed on civil airmen.

Unless this demand is complied with, French civil aviation would declare a general strike, which would paralyse the French air traffic, including the air mail service to South America—Trans-Ocean Service.

R.A.F. GOODWILL FLIGHT

Two Planes Leave
Namkwan

Shanghai, to-day. Two of the R.A.F. planes engaged on a goodwill flight to Japan left Namkwan at 10 a.m.

Later, The two R.A.F. planes arrived from Namkwan at 1.40. (Reuter).

MILITARY COUP IN TOKYO

MARTIAL LAW DECLARED
THROUGHOUT JAPAN

OTHER LEADERS REPORTED KILLED

Tokyo, To-day.

A military coup has occurred in Tokyo, according to messages received in Shanghai. The details are not known, on account of the censorship, but it is understood that several most important political leaders have been assassinated.

Reuter made contact with Tokyo by telephone, but after a few words had been exchanged the connection was broken. It is believed that the coup was accompanied by considerable disturbances. The Stock Exchanges at Osaka and Tokyo have suspended business.

Peiping: It is reported on the most reliable authority that one of the assassinated Ministers in Tokyo is Mr. Takahashi, the Minister of Finance.

MARTIAL LAW DECLARED
Shanghai: It is reported that martial law has been declared throughout Japan. It is significant that Mr. Takahashi was a firm opponent of bigger military budgets, for which reason he was unpopular with the Radical elements and the army. (Reuter).

Fate Of Premier Unknown

Later: The fate of the Premier, Admiral Okada, and the Minister of Interior, Mr. Goto, is uncertain, but presumably they are at least prisoners. An unconfirmed report states that Mr. Goto has been assassinated.

The first division, recently ordered to Manchuria, has been issued with ball cartridges instead of the blanks supplied for the home service.

LOCAL ENQUIRIES

Interviewed this morning, the Japanese Consul-General said he had not been notified of any revolt, while local Japanese shipping companies were similarly placed.

According to a Chinese report the coup was engineered by younger army officers. It is learned that 3,000 men, comprising the 3rd Infantry Regiment of the first division stationed at Tokyo, at dawn seized the office of the Cabinet and Home Office, the residences of the Premier and Minister of Interior and the Metropolitan Police headquarters, overcame the resistance of the sentries. Units of the Imperial Guard Division have been ordered to evict the rebels. (Reuter).

PREMIER ASSASSINATED?
Later: A cryptic message from Tokyo suggests that Admiral Okada has been assassinated but hitherto there has been no confirmation of the report. The Japanese Consular authorities have banned publication of the news of the coup in Japanese papers throughout China. (Reuter).

Truly Democratic Statesman

FROM SLAVE-BOY TO POLITICIAN

From being sold as a slave when a boy, Korekiyo Takahashi rose to the highest eminence in Japanese political life and gave up a peerage for the sake of his democratic principles. He had been once Prime Minister, once acting Prime Minister, and once Minister of Agriculture and Commerce.

Born in 1854 of humble parentage, when his mother was only fifteen years old, he took his name from a Samurai, Kakujiro Takahashi, who adopted him as a baby. While still a boy, Mr. Takahashi went to America and was sold as a slave in San Francisco. He managed to escape and returned to Japan, where he became a teacher of English and later an official of the Education Department. Then followed a position in the Finance Department until he was promoted chief of the Patent Bureau.
SILVER MINE IN PERU
Resigning that office Mr. Takahashi went to Peru with the idea of buying a silver mine. In his letter of resignation he gave the following explanation of his action: "I have made a plan of" (Continued on Page 12)

SINGAPORE BASE

IMPROVEMENT OF NAVAL BASE

Increased Expenditure Allowed

ALLOCATION OF JOHORE
GIFT FUNDS

London, To-day.

The question of increased expenditure on the Singapore naval base was raised in the House of Commons yesterday by Mr. W. Mahone (L. Nat., Huddersfield) in the report stage of the supplementary army estimate of £1,350,000, which was agreed to without a division.

Sir Victor Warrender, Financial Secretary to the War Office, replying, explained that the £67,000 mentioned in the estimate was the maximum they would be able to spend in the current financial year on the acceleration of the Singapore defence scheme from the Johore gift. The remainder would be shown in the estimates next year, and the money would be used to accelerate the defence scheme.

Speaking on the supplementary air estimate, which was confirmed by 237 votes to 112, Sir Philip Sassoon, Under-Secretary for Air, mentioned that the Air Ministry's share of £100,000 of the Johore gift would be spent in creating a voluntary air defence unit under the auspices of the Straits Government. (Reuter).

NEW COIFFURES
TRIED OUTExperts On 1936
Hair StylesTHE AMERICAN WOMAN EXTRAVAGANT

It is forecast that during 1936, American women will spend the huge sum of 150,000,000 gold dollars (approximately $30,000,- 000) in the 65,000 beauty shops of that country, writes a correspondent.

This proves conclusively the contention that American women spend more time, money and attention in enhancing nature than any other women in the world.
When the American figures were sent to me, there accompanied them several forecasts of hair styles for 1936 made by style experts in New York.

There were rather wordy predictions, so I have made a precis of them and give them to you in this form below.

"Fashionable women must wear their hair shorter—only from two and one-half to five inches long,
with as many partings as possible, forming V's, triangles, and other geometric figures.

"Hair will be parted at the crown, combed forward, and dressed in tiny curls or puffs. Ears will be left uncovered. Hair will be feather-edged at the nape of the neck, with the natural neckline retained. For evening, the Renaissance mode, more elaborate than ever, with horizontal curls, braids, and small corkscrew curls,
will be popular."

York the blonde model's hair was

Mother And Daughter

What Are The Latter's Duties?MUTUAL UNDERSTANDING —ESSENTIAL—

"I have been asked to give a talk on the subject of 'A Daughter's Duty Toward Her Mother,'" confided a woman to a friend. "I am completely at a loss to know what to say. For years I have tried to gain an understanding of my duty toward my children but I have never stopped to consider what my children's obligations toward me might be, or that, as a part of their training, I should see that they gain a correct idea of their duty toward their parents. What is more, I cannot find a thing in the library on the subject except one short chapter in a book for home economics classes.

There are plenty of books for parents but none emphasize this point. Whatever am I to do?"
she asked laughingly, yet a bit despairingly.

Not A Duty

"Well, you are a daughter yourself. Surely you have some idea what you consider your duty toward your own mother to be,"
said her friend.

and back from her face. Across the back her hair was combed into a slight swirl ending in curls at one side of her head.

The "shorter hair" aspect of the American 1936 forecasts shows no signs of being fulfilled in London yet.

"At the moment, hairdressers are discovering that women are reacting favourably to coiffures of the softer and more feminine order provided they are dressed in the skillful modern way which preserves balance and line of the head.

Most of the popular styles culminate in curls at the back of the head and until we get tired of these curls, hair must remain long.

But we may get tired very soon for they have been popular for a long time now, and hairdressers and fashion demand changes.

"I do not consider anything I do for my mother as 'duty' at all,"
was the reply. "I do not like to use the word 'duty' in that connection. I do the things I do for her because I like to work with her and because she is the individual she is."

Most of us probably would agree that this woman expressed our own feelings in regard to our mothers.
We do the things we do for them because we love them. But although this woman avoided the thought of the word "duty" in her relationship with her mother, did she not, even so, sum up very well the fundamentals included in a daughter's duty? She liked to work with her mother; that is,
she had the spirit of co-operation, something, no doubt, that had been built up in early childhood. Further, she saw her mother as an interesting individual; she had outgrown the little girl's point of view of seeing her only as her mother. She realized that her mother had interests and needs at least somewhat apart from her own.

Helping Youth

It would surely be helpful in the training of our daughters, and of our sons, too, for that matter, if we were to recognise that it is a fundamental part of our children's growth to develop these attitudes toward us. Often, our own attitude makes it difficult for our children to even want to cooperate, and many times we carry our desire to provide adequately for them to the point where we encourage them to be thoughtless of us.

Most children like to help mother. If she finds joy in her homemaking, the children soon catch the spirit. With what a loving smile, the little toddler, who has been allowed to assist in some small way, will look up at her mother and say, "I'm your little helper." As the child grows older she will appreciate the opportunity to undertake some tasks alone.
"Now, don't help me, Mother. I want to do it all myself," says the girl of 10 who is trying her hand at making a cake.

REPAIRING THE UMBRELLAHow It Is Done In The Home

Owing to the difficulty of finding anyone who can do small repairs, umbrellas sometimes have to be recovered or even discarded and replaced by new ones when they are only slightly the worse for wear. With a little care a damaged umbrella may be made to serve for some months longer, and it is well worth while to see what may be done at home.

Splits or tears in the cover may be patched with pieces of silk either darned carefully on or stuck on with adhesive rubber solution.
If the cover has been torn from one of the tips the damaged edge should be strengthened with a strip of binding neatly darned under it before it is stitched to the tip again.

Broken ribs may be temporarily repaired with rubber tubing and insulating tape. A piece of thin tubing about two inches long should be slipped over one broken end. The other end must then be held in place while the tubing is fitted like a sleeve over both ends.
A strip of insulating tape must then be wound tightly round the sleeve, extended a little way beyond each end. A rib repaired in this way may look a little out of shape, but it is serviceable and will not pierce and damage the cover.

COVER FOR QUILTS

I have just seen some attractive quilt covers made of artificial tulle in various plain colours which may be chosen to tone with almost any bedroom colour scheme, writes a Home Correspondent.

These covers were trimmed with ruffled bands—of the same tulle, which had a very pretty effect.

There were tapes inside the open end to enable you to use the cover to protect a more valuable quilt or you could quite well dis-pens with the tapes and sew the cover upon a quilt which is beginning to look shabby.

An Important Point To Watch
In A Child's Early Training.

Children should be brought up from their earliest years to realise the importance of regularity of the daily habit, and nothing should be allowed to interfere with this function.
When a laxative is necessary, and every child needs one at times, there is nothing more suitable than Baby's Own Tablets. These sweet tasting, absolutely harmless, little lozenges can be given with a certainty of beneficial results to the youngest infant or to the most delicate child.

A medical child-specialist's prescription, Baby's Own Tablets have found a favoured place in communicable homes where there are children for a period of more than forty years.

Administered at the first signs of cold, simple fever, indigestion or constipation, they speedily correct the cause of the trouble and make the child well and happy again. They sweeten the stomach, expel worms, and are a wonderful help to teething babies, quickly easing pain, inducing peaceful sleep in a perfectly natural way. Get a bottle of Baby's Own Tablets to-day; they are sold by all chemists.

"SHIP CAFF"—QUEEN'S THEATRE

This Paramount comedy features Carl Brisson and Arline Judge in the leading roles, and is based on the singing career of a ship's stoker in a waterfront night club.

The story centres around the hilarious experiences of Brisson, who graduates from a stoker to a cafe bouncer, then to a singer and finally to become a rich coun-tess's gigolo. The film presents Brisson in an entirely new role and is his first picture since his role in the musical "All the King's Horses" in which he appeared with Mary Ellis.

The supporting cast includes William Frawley, Mady Christians, Inez Courtney, Eddie Davis, famous Broadway Entertainers.
The two hit songs, "Fatal Fascination" and "Change Your Mind" were written by Lew Green-ler, Harlan Thompson and Ray Noble.

"SHE COULDN'T TAKE IT"—
KING'S THEATRE

Her blue blood boiled over when handsome, hard-as-nails Raft wouldn't take his hat off before he socked her! It's a battle royal of ruffs and clinches, kicks and kisses! He's no gentleman and she's no lady—not in that riotous romance, "She Couldn't Take It," co-starring George Raft and Joan Bennett.

You'll get a laugh-laden lesson in love when rough-and-ready racketeerer Raft tells the beautiful, buoyant Bennett, where to get off and when and how! It's the surprise comedy of the year, the picture with a personality!

Taking part in the wild goings-on are Walter Connolly, Billie Burke, Lloyd Nolan, Wallace Ford,
James Blakely and Donald Meek.
Tay Garnett directed "She Couldn't Take It" from a screen play prepared by Oliver H. P. Garrett, based on a story by Gene Towne and Graham Baker.

"HIS NIGHT OUT"—ALHAMBRA
THEATRE

The huge New York offices of a company operating a chain of drug stores were constructed completely at Universal City, California, to be used as backgrounds in Universal's gay comedy starring Edward Everett Horton, "His Night Out."

Technical advisers and architects were called onto the sound stages to make the set perfect in every detail, from the appointments in the offices of the owner of the "chain," Robert McWade, to the files in the desks of the lowest clerks.

Horton, who is in love with the boss' secretary, played by Irene Hervey, battles gangsters headed

Joan Bennett stars in the Columbia picture "She Couldn't Take It" to be shown at the King's Theatre on Thursday.

by Jack LaRue, "ramps" Lola Lane, gang moll, "sticks up" a collection of thugs, takes the blame for burglarising a safe, and plays a leading part in a series of wild chases in automobiles through Manhattan, ending when the cars crash into the East River.

The exciting backgrounds are fitted to the fast action of the production, which was directed by the veteran, William Nigh, from a cleverly plotted and dialogued script by Doris Malloy and Harry Clark.

"SHE GETS HER MAN"—
MAJESTIC THEATRE

An improvised banquet hall accommodating more than 50, of Chicago's most ferocious looking gangsters is one of the unusual settings in "She Gets Her Man," this riotously funny Universal comedy, with ZaSu Pitts and Hugh O'Connell in the starring roles.

Much of the action of the story takes place in a small town in Arkansas, and there are many interesting views of its main street.
This setting, by the way, is a permanent fixture at Universal studios, and is officially known as the New England Street. Another long-standing "set" used in the picture is the so-called Phantom Stage, embracing the entire interior of a great theatre in Chicago and originally constructed for the memorable silent picture,
"The Phantom of the Opera."

Here Miss Pitts, an accidental heroine in the story, delivers a more-or-less impassioned lecture against crime.

William Nigh directed "She Gets Her Man," and the cast supporting Miss Pitts and O'Connell includes Helen Twelvetrees, Lucien Littlefield, Gertrude Astor, Eddie Brophy, Warren Hymer and many other popular screen players.

A CUP OF KINDNESS—STAR
THEATRE

That interesting Victorian survival, the family wedding group, makes its appearance in the new Walls-Lynn picture, "A Cup of Kindness."

The wedding between members of two local families, the Tutts and the Ramsbothams, brings in the local photographer, with his rickety cameratripod, dusty black head cover, and miserably drooping moustache. Each time the photographer attempts to expose his plate a ludicrous incident happens. To add to this the families are foes and feelings run high.

With Tom Walls, Ralph Lynn and Claude Hulbert as the Tutts, and Robertson Hare as Ramsbotham, one will know exactly what to expect in the way of laughs from this happy quartette of comedians.

Ralph Lynn has been a man of many parts on the screen, but until he played the part of Charley Tutt in "A Cup of Kindness," he had not been a sharepunter. At that job he was eminently successful, not because he knew much about it, but because he discovered bigger "mugs" than himself and used his plausible tongue and artless wit to bamboozle his victims. Eventually he found himself in trouble but was saved by his probity.

"WINGS IN THE DARK"—THE ORIENTAL THEATRE

For Paramount's starring picture of adventure and romance above the clouds, "Wings in the Dark," Myrna Loy and Cary Grant have been cast as flying sweethearts in the co-starring roles.

BRIDGE NOTES

The Crystal-Gazer

By Ely Culbertson

There is about every really exceptional bridge player something of the foresight of a crystal gazer. He seems to sense what lies ahead and instinctively prepares for it. Perhaps this impression of omniscience is exaggerated because the average player finds the expert generally avoiding the pitfalls into which the former is constantly falling. Yet the method which the expert uses is far from black magic, nor is it a divine gift. It is the simple process of looking a step or two ahead, available to every player.

But alas, all too frequently neglected by us all.
This matter of looking ahead requires some knowledge of the differences in meaning which are created by the order in which bids are made. To-day's hand, played in a duplicate game, illustrates this point.

South, Dealer

S. K Q 7 5	N. S. A 3 3
H. K 10 9 7 5	W. E. H. Q 4 3
D. 8 6	D. J 10 9 5 2
C. 9 2	C. 7 6

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1S	Pass
Pass	Pass	2H	Pass
Pass	Pass	Pass	Pass

Now there is nothing exceptionally startling about this bidding except that it occurred at only one single table of a ten-table game, and resulted in a top for this pair. When South opened the bidding with one club, only one North looked far enough ahead to realize that he might wish to make two bids with his comparatively weak hand. Knowing that if he bid hearts first and then bid the spades this reversal would be an inferential force and partner would practically be compelled to rebid to the level of three, he avoided this future difficulty by a little forethought with his first bid.

At other tables the bidding proceeded:

South	North
1C	1H
2C	2S
3H

and sometimes got as high as four.

East opened the Jack of diamonds at every table and declared lost two diamonds, one of hearts, one club and one or two

CHILD SEIZED BY WOLF

Unharmed

Warsaw. While children were playing in the yard of a farmhouse on the edge of a forest in the Vilna district a wolf suddenly appeared among them.
The wolf seized one small boy by his sheepskin coat and dragged him into the wood.
The parents gave chase and the frightened wolf dropped the child, who was found to have escaped with only shock.

spade tricks. The pair that bid only two hearts made it because the declarer played with great care.

After West had won the second diamond trick he shifted to a spade and North's King was won by East's Ace. East shifted to a club and the Queen finesse lost to the King. West returning another spade.

North took with the Queen and led to the Ace of clubs and returned a small one which he trumped with the ten of hearts.
East overtrumped and led a third spade, which was trumped in dummy.

Declarer drew trumps, winning the second lead with dummy's Ace and when the hearts split, discarded his losing spade on dummy's established club, losing only two diamonds, one heart, one spade and one club trick.

MARRIED ADOPTED DAUGHTER

After 17 Years

Los Angeles (California).

A wealthy oil producer, Mr.
James A. Kammerdiner, aged 62, and his 21-year-old adopted daughter, Ruth Marian Kammerdiner, left Los Angeles secretly by aero-

The marriage was not announced until they returned.
"Ruth has been my daughter for the last 17 years," Mr. Kammerdiner said when making the announcement.

LOCAL HEALTH RETURNS

Eleven cases of diphtheria (with one death), one case of scarlet fever, six of enteric fever (with three deaths) and five cases of cerebro-spinal fever (with two deaths) were reported to the Health authorities in the week ended last Saturday. In the same period there were 67 deaths from tuberculosis. In the 24 hours ended on Monday one case each of diphtheria and cerebro-spinal fever were reported.

AMERICA'S OLYMPIC SWIMMING HOPES

RECORD BROKEN ON SIX OCCASIONS

JAPANESE ONLY COMPETITORS

Chicago, February 16.

THE United States has made vast strides in developing youthful swimmers since the 1932 Olympic Games and should win this year's aquatic events at Berlin, Stanley Brauning, swimming coach of the Lake Shore Athletic Club, predicted.

Brauning, who recently returned with a youthful swimming team from a 39-day tour in Europe, said Japan would be the only nation capable of offering the United States real competition in the 1936 Olympics.

The Nipponese may be expected to put up a battle to hold the championship they won in 1932 at Los Angeles when they took first place in every event except the 200-metre dash, Brauning said.

Typical of youthful United States swimmers the veteran coach pointed out, is Adolph Kiefer, of the Lake Shore Athletic Club, back stroke exponent, who has broken every world record for the backstroke since he entered important competitions last February.

On the European tour Kiefer broke fifteen records and set new world marks for the 100 metres and 150 metres. He swam the 100 metres in 1.04.9, which is equivalent to running the 100-yard dash in 7 seconds. His time was 1.33.9 for 150 metres.

"Greatest Natural Swimmer"

Kiefer, 17, and a senior in Roosevelt High School, is hailed by Brauning as the "greatest natural swimmer" since Johnny Weissmuller. His efforts to date have been confined to backstroke events, but Brauning revealed he will train this winter for free style. His achievements in free style competition are expected to be as record-breaking as his backstroke performances.

In the European tour, the Lake Shore medley relay team—composed of Kiefer, Max Bryndenthal, 26, and Art Highland, 23—broke the 300-metre world record six times. They swam 32 times, visiting 25 cities in six countries. Bryndenthal, using the new "butterfly" breast stroke, won all his races at 100 yards and 100 metres. (Continued on Page 5)

U. S. DAVIS CUP TEAM TRAINING STARTS

PRIVATE COACHES ASSIGNED

New York, January 20.

Six of the United States leading players—Wilder Allison, Donald Budge, Bryan Grant, Frank Shields, Gene Mako and John Van Ryn—have been asked by the American L.T.A. to start training for this year's Davis Cup matches.

Private coaches are being assigned to most of the players. With a view to developing Budge's game to the full, the committee have put him in charge of T. Stow, a San Francisco professional. The committee is also ready to assign coaches to Grant, Shields and Mako.

Budge, Mako and Shields, who are on the Pacific Coast, have been placed under the supervision of Mr. Edward Chandler, member of the Cup Committee and a lawyer in San Francisco.

DIVING CHAMPION FOR R.A.F.

C. D. Tomalin, the English diver, won the English diving championship, reported recently at Urbridge, as an acting pilot officer in the Royal Air Force, following a period of training at Northampton. He will be posted to Montrose, Scotland.

FREDDIE MILLER RETAINS HIS FEATHERWEIGHT TITLE

But Mexican Boxer Is Recognised By New York State Commission

Seattle, February 19.

Freddie Miller, world's featherweight champion according to the National Boxing Association, retained his title to-day by defeating Johnny Pena, of San Francisco, on points.

The fight went the full twelve rounds. Baby Arizmendi, the Mexican whirlwind, is the king of featherweights in the eyes of the New York State Commission.

McAvoy Off To America For World Title Fight

London, January 31.

Jock McAvoy, of Rochdale, British middle-weight boxing champion, to-day left London for New York to meet John Henry Lewis, American negro, for the world's cruiser-weight championship.

McAvoy had not heard of a reported postponement of his meeting with Lewis, whom he had signed to meet on April 3.

"I know Lewis is going to be a stiff proposition, but I have an idea I can lick him," he said. "I ice Hockey League Finals.

Jesse Owen, the brilliant Ohio State Negro track and field star and worthy successor to Eddie Tolson, has been rated as America's greatest athlete and will be her first string sprinter and long jumper at the Berlin Games.

All these teams with the exception of R.A. Stonecutters, who are only entering one team, will be competing in the "Blarney Stone Seven-A-Side Rugby Tournament," which is held under the auspices of the Hong Kong Football Club in aid of charity.

BRITISH SUBJECTS FOR CHINA XI?

SOCCER TEAM CHANCES MAY BE RUINED

"STRAITS TIMES" QUERY

Singapore, February 15.

SHOULD Straits-born Chinese, who are British subjects, play football for China—a foreign country—in the World Olympiad at Berlin—in another foreign country—this year? This delicate question, but one of far-reaching importance, arises from the publication of the team to represent China. The names of the players, as released by the China Amateur Athletic Federation, reveal that four belong to the Straits Chinese Football Association—Chia Keng Hock, Chua Boon Lay, Choy Khun Onn and Lim Chwee Chua.

Inquiries made by the Straits Times amount to the fact that it does not follow that the four present members of the S.C.F.A. whose names are mentioned will actually take part in the Olympic Games.

Three former S.C.F.A. players who are now in China are also included, namely Chee Ah Hui (who is now in the Canton Air Force), Tay Quee Liang and Darkie Chen.

FUSILIERS' INTER-COMPANY RUGBY CLASH

H.Q. Wing And 'B' Coy. Share The Spoils

L/CPL. DAVIES PROMINENT

A very good Rugby encounter was witnessed on the New Polo Ground, Kowloon, yesterday, when Headquarters Wing and "B" Company shared the spoils in the Royal Welch Fusiliers' Inter-Company Challenge Cup, each side scoring a goal and a try (8 points).

Play was very open throughout, but was featured by the poor handling of the backs, several chances going astray.

The game had not been in progress long before Fus. Chaney kicked ahead and followed up to score a good try for Headquarters Wing. Fus. Jeffreys adding the additional points. L/Cpl. (52) Davies was next prominent with a good run for "B" Coy., but he was pulled down before he could score.

Poor Handling

Despite some good efforts by "B" Company, they were unable to score before the interval. Play was very open in the second half and both sides looked like scoring on several occasions, but the backs' handling was at fault.

Following a line-out in the H. Q. Wing "25", Fus. Armstrong forced his way over for an unconverted try. Then a good passing movement on the part of the H. Q. Wing backs resulted in Lt. Rice-Evans scoring in the corner, but Fus. Jeffreys failed to convert.

With everything against them, "B" Coy. broke through in the last minute of the game when L/Cpl. (52) Davies scored an excellent try, which Fus. Peckham converted to bring the scores level.

TO-DAY'S RUGBY MATCH CANCELLED

The "A" fifteen Rugby match between the Club and H. M. S. Tamar, which was to have taken place this afternoon, has been cancelled.

LANCASHIRE CRICKET COACHES

The Lancashire County Cricket Club have reappointed Harry Parkin as bowling coach, Practice at the indoor net at Old Trafford has started.

Ralph Flanagan, above, is one of America's most brilliant middle-distance swimmers and, together with Adolf Kiefer, the back-stroke swimmer, and Jack Medina, sprinter, will form the backbone of the American contingent at the Berlin Games.

1,000 RUNS FOR FINGLETON

CENTURY IN GAME AT DURBAN

Durban, To-day.

The match between the Australians and Natal, which began here on Saturday, ended in a draw yesterday, a feature of the day's play being an innings of 167 by J. H. Fingleton, who completed his 1,000 runs for the tour when he reached his 119th run. He is the first Australian to accomplish the feat.

When play was resumed, the Australians, who had scored 10 for 0 at the close of play on the previous day, took their score to 326 for 9, at which point the closure was applied.

Fingleton took 243 minutes to score his runs, during which time he hit a six and 16 boundaries.

Natal replied with 30 for 1.—Reuter.

CRICKET MATCH ABANDONED

Rain Interferes At Kowloon

The friendly cricket match between the Kowloon Cricket Club and the Craigengower Cricket Club, which commenced on Monday and which was to have been continued yesterday, was abandoned on account of the rain.

At the close of play on Monday Craigengower had scored 77 for 2 in reply to Kowloon's total of 107 runs.

CHANNEL BUOYS

WHAT would modern navigation do without the channel buoys—those floating markers that keep ships off the shoals? In a very real sense, the advertisements in this paper are channel buoys, placed for your protection—for the safeguarding of the family expenditures.

These advertisements are the signed statements of reputable firms who seek your patronage on the single basis of giving value for every dollar spent. They are honest statements, the only kind an advertiser can use and remain an advertiser.

People who get the most for their dollar in the market-places are those who keep an eye on the channel buoys. Day by day, they follow the advertisements to learn what and where to buy to the best advantage. Make this a habit. Study the advertisements, in the interest of shrewder buying.

The advertisers in this paper have charted the channels of buying for you. Keep to the course.

The butterfly stroke, introduced last year, has greatly speeded up breast stroke swimming. The swimmer who uses it brings his arms up over his shoulders from behind instead of pushing them out in front of him as in the orthodox stroke.

Untrue Prediction

"It's like chinning yourself every time you complete the stroke," Brauning said. "When it was first introduced, coaches everywhere said it was killing and that no man could keep it up for any distance."

The same thing, he observed, was said of the crawl stroke when it was introduced. He believes the stroke will be developed by young swimmers whose muscles have not been trained to the old style, and that it may be used eventually by all breast-stroke swimmers. No swimmer has yet used it to a distance of more than 100 metres, but Brydental will train on the stroke exclusively this winter and may be able to go 200 metres when Olympic tests take place next summer, Brauning believes.

"The treatment we received on all sides was of the finest," he said. "We found all the officials and swimmers to be good sportsmen and anticipate the same kind of reception for Olympic team."

Banking's Century Of Progress

The annual addresses of the chairmen of the five great Joint Stock Banks are generally an indication of how they read the signs of the times. It is not so long since these speeches were eagerly scanned for the first slight rays of hope in the prevailing gloom. That depression, happily, has largely passed away, and the general feeling of strong confidence in Great Britain will be reinforced by a study of the addresses last month of Mr. Reginald McKenna, of the Midland Bank, and Mr. Beckett, of the Westminster. They declared, no less confidently than Mr. Tuke, who addressed the shareholders of Barclay's Bank the week before, that for Great Britain 1935 had been the most encouraging year since the depression. Mr. Beckett said there was good ground for believing that the £51,000,000 debit balance in the nation's trading accounts for 1932 had been turned into a credit balance of from £20,000,000 to £30,000,000 for 1935, after two years in which both sides of the account had been approximately equal.

Hopeful signs are many. On the other hand, general international trade is not improving much, and "the solution of the existing exchange difficulties," in Mr. Beckett's phrase, "eludes us still." General stabilisation, therefore, remains still an ideal: others might call it a will o' the wisp. At any rate it is probably removed farther from realisation than ever owing to the involved nature of the political situation in Europe. What it all seems to come to is that there is every reason to hope for a continuance of the recent improvement in England if, in Mr. Tuke's words, the community there are "spared further major developments of a disturbing character abroad or complications at home." The strength of the general desire to escape complications at home was admirably shown by the settlement of the threatened deadlock in the coal industry by close negotiation and the proofs of practical good will evinced by all classes of the community. Whether there are to be "major developments abroad" depends more on others than on the British nation.

It is of special interest to observe that both the Midland and the Westminster Banks this year are celebrating their centenaries. Their chairmen, therefore, naturally drew attention to the striking development, not only of their own particular institutions, but of banking in general since 1836. Certain foolish people attack the great joint stock banks as well as the Bank of England as being symbols of evil and active agents in the production of industrial distress, by their selfish worship of what their detractors are pleased to call "the Golden Calf." It is an avowed part of the Socialist programme, though most Socialist candidates last November kept it well in the background, to nationalise the Bank of England and put it under national, i.e., strictly political, control. The joint stock banks are reserved for somewhat later attack; when the main citadel falls it seems to be hoped that they will tamely hand over the keys. Yet every capable foreign

EXPLANATION OF TO-DAY'S CARTOON

Friendliest Man

JOHN L. Horgan is credited with having one of the best memories in the country. For thirty years he has been in the hotel business and in that time has contacted some thirty million guests in his establishments. Out of that number, he can remember by name and face at least one million people, and can greet them readily. He has a "nodding acquaintance" with over five million people, and he constantly astounds his guests as he calls them by name after long periods between meetings. Mr. Horgan is now managing director of the Hotel Edison, New York City.

Unique In Baseball

Archie Campbell of the P.C.L. Hollywood team, won the ball game, had one assist, and one put out, and only threw one ball. San Francisco and Hollywood were playing at Los Angeles. First half of the 9th innings for S.F., one man out and a runner on second. Score 4 to 4. Campbell relieved the pitcher. He threw one ball, batter hit to first baseman, who threw to Campbell covering first, giving Campbell the put out. Runner on second tried to score but Campbell threw him out at the plate for an assist. Hollywood then came in, scoring one run, for a 5-4 victory.

NEW GOVERNOR OF FIJI APPOINTED

London, To-day. — His Majesty the King has approved the appointment of Sir Arthur Richards, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of Gambia, as Governor and Commander-in-Chief of Fiji and High Commissioner for the Western Pacific, in succession to Sir A. G. M. Fletcher, former Governor of Hong Kong, who has been appointed Governor and Commander-in-Chief of Trinidad and Tobago.—British Wireless Service.

observer knows that the British banks and the British banking system are part of the very foundation of England's industrial and financial stability. Without the development of the banks the great industries of the land could not have developed. Without the sound banking principles which have been evolved by experience the path of development would have been far more plentifully strewn with wreckage.

The present centralisation of banking represents a hundred years of steady and natural growth. The disappearance in turn of the private banker and of the private or public limited company of a more or less local scale, and their supersession, through amalgamations, by five large banking corporations, having branches all over the country, have proved an almost unmitigated gain. There was a time in Britain when the mortality among banks was something like what has been witnessed much more recently in the United States. No fewer than 2,298 banks closed their doors in the United States in 1931, following 1,345 in 1930, and their deposits amounted to two and a half billion dollars. England has never rivalled such figures, but there was a disastrous month in 1825 when no fewer than 82 private British banks, all issuing their own notes, stopped payment. There are, doubtless, very good reasons why the United States have evolved their banking system on their own particular lines—reasons closely associated with their constitutional laws relating to State rights. But when criticisms are levelled against the British banks for their undue conservatism and their rigid adherence to the old-fashioned principles of banking, it is pertinent to recall that it was the new era of American banking philosophy, during what has been called "the gold-spangled decade of the 1920's" which helped to produce the subsequent catastrophe. Certainly two of the British Big Five would not be celebrating their centenary with a bonus if they had not maintained the Victorian tradition of the difference between sound and unsound principles of banking.

Here There and Everywhere

NELSON IN GERMANY

A London paper has received from the Kaiser, whose interest in the sea is unquenchable, an article which gives new information about Nelson's visit to Germany in 1800. The article is by a former German naval officer and is compiled from the diaries of a lady of the Saxon Court.

Nelson came with Lady Hamilton to Dresden in October 1800 and stayed a week there. He spent most of his time at the opera and at concerts.

His modesty and his frail figure made a great appeal to the Germans.

EMBARRASSING INTERVIEW

The diarist gives full details of the visit, including a staring match at the opera between Lady Hamilton and the wife of the French Ambassador. Lady Hamilton won. There is an amusing account of Nelson's audience with the King of Saxony. The King spoke no English. Nelson, according to the diarist, knew not a word of any other language.

The article mentions that the Nelson Mass, composed by Haydn, is still performed in Dresden.

Your Daily Smile!

A farmer was spending a few days in Cape Town and one evening went to an expensive hotel for dinner. When he was seated a tray of olives was placed on the table. He eyed them critically for a while and then beckoned the waiter. "I would be obliged," he said, "if you could let me see one of the pods those green-peas grew in."

A London bishop who was feeling ill called on his doctor.

"You must spend the winter in Algeria," said the doctor.

"Haven't the time," said the bishop.

"Well," said the doctor, "I'm afraid it's a case of either that or—Heaven."

"All right," grumbled the bishop, "I'll go to Algiers."

He paused on the doorstep. He had suddenly thought of something.

"By the way," he said to his wife, "I'm bringing young Barclay home with me from the office to-night."

"Oh, Fred, whatever for?" she replied. "We haven't a thing to eat in the house, the cook's left, baby has measles, and mother is coming."

"Yes," he said, "that's just why I'm bringing him home. The young ass is thinking of getting married."

PREPARED HIMSELF FOR KINGSHIP

KING'S SERIOUSNESS OF PURPOSE

PLACES HIS CONFIDENCES IN RANKS OF THE "COMING MAN"

(By Cecil Hunt)

WHEN the voice of the national affairs more necessary, Garter King of Arms had died over the heads of the exalted throng, when the trumpets had ceased their clamorous welcome to our new King, one fact remained in the minds of all King Edward's thoughtful subjects.

They knew that no Prince had ever ascended the Empire throne who had more carefully prepared himself for kingship. And that assurance was with them, like an anchor in the storm of bereavement, because they had learned these things from their beloved Prince of Wales's own lips.

Though always he drew a loving popularity from his youthful personality and vigorous zest for modern life, he was ever at pains to reveal his equally intense seriousness of purpose and his ability not only to sympathise but to grasp the facts that made such sympathy necessary.

Post-War Mentality

On his own confession he found his manhood in the Great War, when he fought so hard and successfully to share the ordinary man's lot.

He found, too, that he could and did ally himself with the modern mentality in the post-war period.

For him apathy and indolent reaction after stress were never justified or likely to be productive.

Here are his own words, in his appeal to youth in 1932:

"Depression and apathy are the Devil's own," he said. "They are not English, so away with them."

"We have got to fight to keep England a bulwark for the cause of men; to keep our great heritage in trust for those that come after. I pin my faith on the younger generation."

Thus at home, but he was equally emphatic that "never was clear thinking in interna-

FAITH NOT ENOUGH "SNAKE-BITE" AS "CURE" OF PHTHISIS

Christian Scientist's Fatal Error

YOUNG ENGLISHMAN'S DEATH IN SOUTH AFRICA

Beaufort West (Cape Province). A belief that snake venom would cure him of tuberculosis has led to the death of a 29-year-old English Christian Scientist, of Hillside-road, Paignton, Devon, named Jack Valentine.

Hearing that there was a snake in the garden, Valentine, who had only recently arrived from England, went out and caught it with his bare hand.

The reptile, a deadly "ringhals," the African Cobra, bit him in the arm. Friends rushed out to his assistance, but Valentine kept them at a distance with the writhing snake which he was still holding and asked them not to interfere as he wished to be cured.

Shifting his grip away from the snake's head he allowed it to bite him again five times on the wrist, then nonchalantly he walked up the garden-path and threw the reptile, which measured four feet, into the street, where it was quickly killed by an excited crowd.

As he entered the house Valentine is reported to have remarked: "You see I am quite all right. My faith in this and the Bible will cure me." He refused medical aid and made a statement completely exonerating doctors from all responsibility.

A little while later he became unconscious and died.

WIFE IMPERSONATES HER HUSBAND

Served Three Weeks' Gaol Sentence

Berlin. One of the most daring impersonations yet carried out has been made by a young Hamburg woman who served a three weeks' sentence of imprisonment imposed upon her husband.

Not only did the prison authorities fail to detect the deception, but the woman deceived nine men with whom she shared a cell.

Vanity led to her undoing. She was photographed with other prisoners at work during her stay in gaol, and was so eager to obtain a permanent memento of her escapade that she applied for a copy.

The suspicions of the photographer were aroused, and her identity was unmasked.

The woman was fined 24, and proceedings are to be taken against the husband who, the wife declares, forced her by threats to take his place.

SOVIET UNION FILM COLONY PLAN

Russian "Hollywood" In Caucasus

The Soviet Union is laying plans for a vast new Soviet Hollywood, capable of producing from 150 to 200 motion films a year and supporting a movie colony of 20,000 persons.

One of Russia's leading film executives has suggested using Soukhoum, a town in the Caucasus, for the purpose. Some 40 studios would be built, covering an area of 3,300 square metres, while the city, and its suburbs would be flung out over an area of nearly 30 square miles.

It is estimated that about 500 actors would take up residence at Soukhoum, and that 9,000 workmen and 220 film experts would be employed in turning out Russian pictures. The cost of the undertaking has been put at more than 300,000,000 roubles.

FLYING FLEA CRASHES

Mr. C. L. Story, of Alexandra-street, Southend, was unhurt when his Flying Flea, which he had built in his spare time for £150, crashed at Southend Airport.

BREAK-UP OF FAMOUS NEGRO PARTNERSHIP

Clarence Johnstone Goes Bankrupt

HAD NO ENGAGEMENTS SINCE DISSOLUTION

The first meeting of creditors was held recently at London Bankruptcy Buildings, under the chairmanship of Clarence Nathaniel Johnstone, entertainer, of Castellaine Mansions, Maida Vale, N.W.

Mr. S. W. Hood, Official Receiver, reported that Johnstone presented his petition on January 6, and had been adjudged bankrupt.

He stated in preliminary examinations that for some years he had been working on joint terms with Turner Layton as Layton and Johnstone. That engagement was terminated on November 18 last by his partner notifying through the Press that he proposed to break the partnership.

Since then Johnstone had had no engagement, nor were any contracts in existence.

Practically the only liability was £16,081 in respect of income and super-tax arrears, which had gradually accumulated, and of which, Johnstone alleged, he was not informed at the time.

No assets were disclosed, but something might be forthcoming from royalties.

The case was left in the hands of the Official Receiver.

DRESSES TAKEN FROM SHOP

Mother And Daughter Charged

Kathleen Esme Grose, aged 30, shop assistant, of Tring-avenue, Ealing Common, pleaded guilty at Marlborough-street Police-court last month to stealing eight dresses, worth £28 4s 6d., from Dickens and Jones Ltd., Regent-street. Her mother, Mrs. Edith Mary Grose, aged 53, of the same address, pleaded guilty to receiving the dresses.

It was stated that the younger woman was seen carrying dresses from a fitting-room, and that Mrs. Grose, who was carrying a suitcase, was followed to another shop. She dropped the case, ran into the street, and boarded an omnibus. The eight dresses were found in the suitcase.

Daughter's Statement Kathleen Grose was stated to have said to a detective: "Leave my mother out of it; I will take the blame."

The daughter was fined £10 with £3 3s. costs, and the mother £20, with £5 5s. costs. The magistrate, Mr. J. B. Sandbach, K.C., said: "It was a deliberate fraud, and I am not sure that I ought not to send you both to prison."

FORTUNES OF TURKISH CUSTOMS OFFICERS

Angora.

Following a debate in the Turkish National Assembly, the Minister of Customs has instituted a rigorous inquiry into the source of the handsome fortunes amassed by scores of Customs officials not warranted by the salaries they receive.

Many of the officers concerned have acquired estates of considerable value.

WEIGHT IN GOLD

AGA KHAN'S $25,125 GIFT FOR CHARITY

Jubilee Celebration In Bombay

SPIRITUAL HEAD OF ISMAILI MOHAMMEDANS.

Bombay. Thirty thousand of the millions of the Aga Khan's followers gathered in Bombay last month to see their spiritual head being weighed—the weights in the scales being bars of gold.

The result was that $25,125—the equivalent in money of his weight—will be given by the Aga Khan for charitable and educational purposes. This is in celebration of the jubilee of his accession to the leadership of the Ismaili section of the Moslems, spread throughout India, Central Asia, the Middle East, and Africa.

At function, at which he appeared in purple robes and a green turban, he announced that in view of King George's illness he would dispense with all but the religious ceremonies, which would include a prayer for his Majesty's recovery.

The Aga Sultan Mohamed Shah, who acceded at the age of nine, is a Privy Councillor and holds the rank of first class chief, with a salute of 11 guns, in recognition of loyal services in the European war. He is well known in social and sport circles in England and on the Continent.

WANTED TO MARRY AT 74

Asks Possession Of Premises

When a man of 74, Arthur Ling, of Ecclesbourne-road, Islington, applied at Clerkenwell County Court for possession of rooms in his house, occupied by F. Emmett, he explained that he had been in the house for 33 years and wanted that floor so that he could get married.

Judge Fareney said that although the premises were controlled by the council, he regarded the application as one of special circumstance; the order of possession would be dated so that the tenant would have five weeks' grace.

Churches That "Make One Blush"

Mr. R. G. Banks, Chancellor of the Diocese of Manchester and Blackburn, presiding at a Consistory Court at Read to-day, said:

"If you go through the churches of this country some of the things that are in them really make one blush. There are many things which are certainly not beautiful."

"We must see that improvements to churches are in the best interest of the Church and people."

The court was considering a petition by the vicar, the Rev. H. H. Nash, the church-warden of St. Peter Church, Earley, for a faculty to make alterations to the church.

Mr. Banks sat in the absence of Sir William Hansell, Chancellor of the Diocese of Oxford, who is ill.

Today's Short Story

OVERDOING IT!

By Phyllis Hastings

SUPERSTITION? Well, it's all right in its place. I mean, you can understand a man stepping into the road to avoid walking under a ladder, and you can understand a man who feels a bit hot round the collar when he sits at a table laid for thirteen.

But Henry Hopps carried things to extremes.

He had been working at our Bank for about five years; had his desk next to mine, in fact. You couldn't say that Hopps was one of those super-personality chaps. He was just small and short-sighted and inoffensive. I was mildly friendly with him, but only mildly, because he wasn't really my sort, though I felt sorry for him in a way. He was married and I figured it out that his salary wouldn't look so good divided by wife, plus villa, plus charwoman, plus all those little responsibilities which wild, woolly bachelors like myself find so frightfully amusing.

Maybe it was because he couldn't afford other hobbies that Hopps indulged in superstitions. And how he indulged!

The funny thing was that this mania of his didn't seem to make him particularly happy. You see, human nature being what it is—discontented and apprehensive at the best of times—there have always been more omens for bad luck than for good. And Hopps mostly hit the bad ones.

Perhaps he'd pass a load of hay on his way to the Bank, or have a black cat cross his path. Well, that was fine. But, sure enough, something would happen to upset it before the day was out. It might only be a little thing, like finding his knives crossed at the restaurant where he lunched, or being served by a cross-eyed waitress, but it was sufficient to plunge him into the deepest gloom.

I think we must have been a fairly tolerant lot at our Bank, or perhaps we hadn't much sense of humour. Anyway, we never thought of ragging Hopps about his foibles until Dunderdale came. Dunderdale was one of those chaps who go round the world labelled "the life and soul of the party." He hadn't been with us two days before he found out about Hopps. And then he started

TO-MORROW'S STORY

To-morrow's story will be "The Ratty Day," by Stuart Jackson.

Oh, he didn't pull his leg openly, or criticise him, or anything like that. Quite the opposite. He just talked to Hopps and sympathised, and said he'd always been mad on superstition himself. You should have seen Hopps open out under his treatment. He absolutely blossomed. "All my life," he quavered. "I've wanted to find someone interested in these important and psychic matters. But people are so callous nowadays, so—so reckless. They don't realise how they are tempting those mysterious and superhuman powers which lie around us."

Dunderdale nodded solemnly. "You are right, dead right. Every child should be taught from its mother's knee to read the signs sent us by Fate. Think how many accidents might be avoided if people only remembered not to open an umbrella in the house!"

"Are umbrella-makers exempt?" someone asked, cheekily.

Dunderdale glared at the heckler. "I am particularly sympathetic," he went on, "because my grandmother was a gypsy. She was the seventh child of a seventh child, and I am the third child of a third child. You see? Seven and three. The mystic numbers." Hopps was impressed.

"Really! That's most interesting." "I shall be only too pleased to help or advise you—that is, of course, if you consider me competent."

FRANCO-SOVIET PACT EXPECTED TO BE RATIFIED TO-MORROW

FLANDIN'S DEFENCE APPLAUDED NO AGGRESSION AGAINST GERMANY COLLABORATION SOUGHT

Paris, To-day.

France has never ceased to desire to associate in understanding and specially in the safeguarding of peace, declared M. Flandin, defending the Franco-Soviet Pact in the Chamber, yesterday. All successive French Governments had been faithful to this conception and had taken care to keep Germany's place open.

The pact contained no obligation such as might be found in a treaty or alliance. It was not contrary to the spirit of Locarno, but confirmed Locarno and affirmed that no aggression would be made against Germany. The pact only envisaged resistance towards an aggressor.

M. Flandin recalled the Ministerial declaration. He spoke of collaboration with Germany and said: "It is desirable that a great nation to which civilisation owes so much should resume its place in the world on a footing of equality."

The fact that the entire Left and the greater part of the Centre applauded M. Flandin's defence of the Franco-Soviet Pact in the Chamber yesterday afternoon left no doubt that the pact will be ratified by the vote, which is expected to be taken to-morrow.

M. Flandin has not converted the Right opposition, which shuns any close association with Moscow, minimises Russia's military efficiency, and deprecates unnecessary provocation of Germany, but he scored by announcing his readiness to submit to the Hague Court the question of the compatibility of the Pact with Locarno. — Reuter.

GERMAN POSITION

Berlin: The formal German denunciation of the Locarno Pact is not considered imminent in well-informed circles. While the ratification of the Franco-Soviet Pact has definitely torpedoed the German confidence in Locarno, it might not be necessary to take the drastic step of denouncing Locarno, but officials stress that Germany definitely regards the two pacts as irreconcilable.

It is declared that Herr von Haase's visit to Signor Mussolini is merely informative. — Reuter.

FLANDIN'S SPEECH

Paris: In the presence of no more than 50 Deputies the debate on the ratification of the Franco-Russian Pact was resumed yesterday afternoon. The apathy, however, which appeared in the House immediately ceased when M. Flandin went to the Speaker's tribune to give his long awaited speech in defence of the pact.

The Foreign Minister began by stressing that France had always advocated the system of collective security, adding that since a general understanding had been found, great opposition, one had been obliged to take recourse to regional solutions. In surveying the history of the pact, M. Flandin stressed that it had been originally conceived by M. Litvinoff and the French Foreign Minister, M. Louis Barthou, in 1934, had been characterised as dangerous by Germany, while Poland had given an evasive reply.

French diplomacy had then done all it could to render the apprehensions of Poland and Germany unnecessary, and had even thought of modifying the pact, but Germany had persistently rejected any form of mutual assistance, although it had been stressed that this mutual assistance should only be rendered in the framework of the Locarno Treaty and the League Covenant.

It was also from the beginning pointed out that the pact was not to be isolated, but only the beginning of a universal pact. In these conditions the pact had been signed by M. Laval in 1935.

The German Government had then taken the view that the pact was incompatible with the stipulations of the Locarno Pact, while the British Government had informed the German Government that such incompatibility did not exist.

The speaker declared in this connection that France had never ceased to desire the inclusion of Germany in the pact.

M. Flandin then protested against the assertion that the Pact would deprive France of her freedom of decision, reiterating that the pact was to prevent war and to form a part of the collective system of security. France

MR. EDEN'S COMMONS SPEECH

Official Opinion in Italy

CHINA MAIL SPECIAL Rome, To-day. Although no official utterance is as yet forthcoming in connection with Mr. Anthony Eden's speech in the House of Commons, official quarters here hold that the speech adds no new element to the already existing situation. The same quarters are of the opinion that Mr. Eden's reference to the possibility of a solution of the Italo-Abyssinian conflict is too vague to furnish a useful basis for discussion, but it is a veiled admission that the British are now aware of their responsibility in advocating sanctions in the first place. — Trans-Ocean Service.

had already assumed responsibilities in Eastern Europe with the Franco-Polish Treaty and the Franco-Czechoslovakian Treaty, and the French Government could therefore not accept the theory of "geographical isolation" advocated in certain quarters.

CO-OPERATION DESIRED The Minister moreover questioned the accuracy of some of the previous speakers concerning the repercussions produced in Germany by the Pact, and declared that the French Government had always desired co-operation with Germany.

The French Government earnestly wished that the great German people, to whom civilisation owed so much, would take their legitimate place at the international table, in order to participate in collective discussions.

After denying once more that France, by signing the Franco-Russian Pact, had been guilty of violating the Locarno Pact, M. Flandin stressed in conclusion: "This pact, which forms another step towards the road of peace, conforms to French policy and does not imperil the independence of the French Government."

After the Ministerial speech the Chamber decided to adjourn.

ANXIETY IN BELGIUM

Brussels: The anxiety felt in Belgium at the Franco-Russian Pact is voiced by the Libre Belgique, which says that it is incomprehensible why the Temps Libre, is especially open to criticism, as Germany rather feels herself threatened by the pact, and also because it renders still more difficult the Franco-German understanding.

The paper concludes: "Belgian public opinion is greatly disturbed by the course which French policy is pursuing." — Trans-Ocean Service.

WEATHER REPORT

The anti-cyclone over China has decreased in intensity; pressure is highest to the north of Shanghai and relatively low in a trough extending from Indo-China to the Pacific. A depression covers the Loochoo North-east winds, fresh; cloudy, probably some rain was the forecast for to-day, as issued by the Royal Observatory this morning.

COSSACK'S BEAUTY REVELS IN MUD

BEAR CLAW WINS There were only three acceptances for The Grand Stand Stakes, Royal Consort (Mr. Harriman) being made favourite on the strength of his performance in The Racing Stakes yesterday, but Bear Claw (Mr. Frost) left him standing at the gate and won by a length, with Forest View (Mr. Wong) many lengths behind in third position.

At least six lengths in arrears on entering the back straight, Royal Consort was called upon for too big an effort.

The weather looked as if it was going to clear at this period, the sun actually showing itself for a few minutes, but the heaviest downpour yet experienced came soon after, leaving the centre of the Valley almost totally submerged.

ANOTHER LAN WINNER Cossack's Beauty (Mr. Wong) gave the Lan stable their sixth win of the Meeting when he romped home an easy winner, after leading all the way, in the Ladies' Purse. Gladiator (Mr. Needa) was second and Mistake Bay (Mr. Frost) a poor third. Soldier of Britain, which has always disliked muddy conditions, ran last all the way round.

NIGHT STAR NOWHERE The Adelaide Stakes provided the first upset, Night Star, the favourite, failing to place and Shooting Star (Mr. Frost), returning $28.80 for his deservingly won from Goldsmith (Mr. Pih). Mr. Pote-Hunt just managed to keep Sancy Face ahead of Racing Heart, which was well ridden by Mr. Harris, for third place. Halcyon, which acted as pace-maker, finished nowhere.

SURPRISE WIN Royal Highness (Mr. Chespe) caused a sensation when he won the Jockey Cup by a neck from Donovan (Mr. Poy) to pay $50.70, the highest dividend of the morning—Donovan also paid well, $35.80. Flybynight, which was ridden by Mr. Harris, secured third prize, ahead of Night View.

Harvest View, a red hot favourite, faded out of the picture after passing the Rock and finished nowhere.

LADIES PURSE PRESENTED At the conclusion of this race Miss Yvonne Shenton presented the Ladies' Purse to Mr. T. L. Wong, the Northern rider who won on Mr. Lan's Cossack's Beauty, who in turn handed her a beautiful bouquet of flowers before escorting her to the tiffin in Mr. V. M. Grayburn's box.

FRENCH NAVAL VISIT

ADMIRAL ESTEVA HERE

TO BE ENTERTAINED BY CONSUL-GENERAL

The French cruiser Lamotte Picquet arrived in the Colony this morning with Vice-Admiral Esteva, Commander-in-Chief of the French Fleet in the Far East, on board. The cruiser was originally expected to arrive here to-morrow and is therefore one day ahead of her schedule. She will remain here until March 9.

On the arrival here of the Admiral, the customary salutes were fired, and official calls will be exchanged.

A reception, with buffet supper, in honour of Admiral Esteva and the Officers will be held at the Consular Residence, No. 13 Peak Road, to-morrow, from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m., to which the leading local residents, the Consular Body and the French community have been invited. Dance music will be provided by the orchestra of the Lamotte-Picquet.

FOREIGN AIRCRAFT BARRED FROM MALTA

Aimed At Italian Machines

CHINA MAIL SPECIAL Malta, To-day. Foreign aircraft are prohibited from approaching the Malta coast nearer than three miles, by a decree of the Governor-General issued here yesterday. Foreign aircraft may only land on the Civil Airport of St. Paul's Bay on the condition that they keep a certain distance from the fortifications.

The decree is aimed against Italian aeroplanes, since they are the only ones that regularly call at Malta. — Trans-Ocean Service.

RECORD FOR MR. DUNBAR

EIGHT CHAMPIONS IN ROW The Dunbar stable has won the Champions since 1928, when Elliot Bay beat Pickle, owned by the Hon. Mr. A. C. Hynes and Mr. C. Gordon Mackie. In the following year Mrs. Dunbar's Sitting Bull proved too good for Mr. Ho Kom-tong's President Hall.

The following have been the winners for the past eight years: 1928—Elliot Bay (Maidland) in 2:32.4 1929—Sitting Bull (Hill) in 2:37.0 1930—Diana Bay (Hill) in 2:38.0 1931—Diana Bay (Hill) in 2:39.2 1932—Diana Bay (Hill) in 2:31.1 1933—Liberty Bay (Hill) in 2:34.0 1934—Liberty Bay (Hill) in 2:36.2 1935—Liberty Bay (Hill) in 2:35.3

The track is still in a muddy condition, there being several pools of water in the sand-track and inside the Valley.

ENGLAND AND FREE STATE

Matters In Dispute To Be Discussed

London, To-day.
 Asked if, following on the recent success of the coal and cattle negotiations with the Irish Free State, he would now set on foot negotiations for settling all the outstanding economic disputes between the two countries, the Dominions Secretary, Mr. Malcolm MacDonald, said that he had that aspect of the matter in mind. The Government in the United Kingdom would not fail to take advantage of any opportunity of improving the relations with the Irish Free State.—British Wireless Service.

HAPPIER LIFE FOR SOLDIERS

Restaurants And Swimming Baths

To increase the number of recruits the British Army Council is to provide greater comfort and more attractive facilities for soldiers. The changes now in progress include:
 Better accommodation.
 Well-planned restaurants, swimming baths.
 Opportunities for sport, with well-equipped grounds, are already available for the troops on a far more lavish scale than in civil life.

Cycles

There are cycles of good and bad recruiting, which are just as difficult to account for as cycles of trade. Over a period of years, however, the Army has been able to obtain, roughly, the numbers that it required.

There have been disturbing influences. The entry of a young and popular service like the Royal Air Force into the market has undoubtedly produced competition where the Army had previously a monopoly. There is, too, the question of the standard of living. It has not always been easy, therefore, for the Army to make the amenities in barracks and married quarters keep pace with the increased comfort in civil life, for reconstruction on a large scale is expensive.

Admirable Institution

The recruits are far more carefully selected than they used to be in the old days, and the higher standard is no doubt partly responsible for recruits not being so plentiful.

The public as a whole has not yet realised what an admirable institution the Army is. The annual regimental "At Homes" have been a revelation to parents of how much is done for the soldier. The mechanisation now taking place will add enormously to the interest of the soldier's life and help to provide him with a trade. The vocational training centres teach trades to 3,000 men a year, and more than 70 per cent. of them get jobs immediately they leave the Army.

Publicity regarding what the Army really is cannot fail to be the best recruiting agent.

"She Couldn't Take It," the Columbia picture coming to the King's Theatre on Thursday, stars George Raft and Joan Bennett.

DAUGHTER OF SECOND WIFE TO HAVE SHARE

New York.
 The two daughters of John Gilbert, the Perfect Screen Lover, who died of heart failure in his Hollywood home last month, are to share with the last of his four wives—Virginia Bruce—his fortune of £50,000, which once exceeded £200,000.

The will was drawn up while he was married to Miss Bruce—whom he always spoke of as one of the great loves of his life—and it is understood that the bulk of the money goes to her.

The amount left to his children is not known, but it is understood that they are "comfortably" provided for.

One of his daughters, 12-year-old Leatrice Ivy Gilbert, daughter of his second wife, attended the funeral service in Beverly Hills with her mother. The other, aged two, daughter of Virginia Bruce, remained at home, although her mother was among the mourners.

Another mourner was Marlene Dietrich. Among the flowers were white gladioli from Marlene Dietrich, a 6ft. white cross of chrysanthemums and sweet peas from Dolores del Rio, and a spray from Eileen Pringle, who starred with Gilbert in the days of silent film.

There was a weeping woman, poorly dressed, who arrived at the chapel door with a bunch of violets. Having no ticket she was not admitted, and the violets were put with the other floral tributes, one of which bore the simple words: "From a fan."

OFFICER'S MEALS ON CREDIT

Captain's Bills In Restaurant

MAGISTRATE'S REPRIMAND

Capt. Norman Melville Chivers, M.C., aged 41, a retired Indian Army officer and a former member of the London Stock Exchange, of Courtfield-gardens, South Kensington, was at Bow-street recently bound over to come up for judgment if called upon on charges of obtaining two meals on credit by fraud at the Koh-i-Noor restaurant, Rupert-street, W.

The proprietor of the restaurant said that Capt. Chivers had a meal costing 3s. on Dec. 19, and at his request was allowed to sign the bill. The next day he went there again and asked for another meal. He said that he already owed a bill, and promised to pay both before leaving. After the meal he said he had no money.

Ingenious Defence
 Capt. Chivers, in the witness box, said he did not pay the bill for his first meal because he was taken suddenly ill. On the second occasion he told the proprietor about his debt, and said that if he could have another meal he would return later and pay both bills.

The magistrate, Mr. Dummett, said: "It is a pity you did not make a clean breast of it instead of bringing up this ingenious and false defence. It shows a certain amount of cunning."

NIGERIA BY CAR IN 7½ DAYS

Air Mail Time Beaten

Mr. H. E. Symons, the motorist who journeyed from Folkestone to Kano (Northern Nigeria) in a British car in seven days eight hours, arrived back at Folkestone on January 1.

"The journey was quicker than air mail services and took less than half the time for the rail and boat journey," he stated. "It also cost us less than half the rail and boat fare."

"We did nearly 500 miles a day, but on one day conditions were extremely bad and we were only able to cover 124 miles."

LETTER BOX CLEARED

Daring London P.O. Robbery

London police were searching recently for a man who opened and cleared a post office pillar-box in King's Cross-road. Post Office keys or duplicates are believed to have been used, as the locks were not forced.

The man, wearing civilian clothes, was noticed by the staff at King's Cross-road post office, but they paid no attention because many temporary postmen in civilian clothes were still working after the Christmas rush. It was not until the regular uniformed man arrived ten minutes later that the robbery was discovered.

LORD DE CLIFFORD ACQUITTED

"Contemptible" Letters

ANNOYED BY THEM FOR FIVE MONTHS

When Lord de Clifford appeared at the Old Bailey recently, charged with dangerous driving, reference was made to "contemptible" anonymous letters he had received. No evidence was offered by the prosecution, and he was discharged.

It was the final proceeding arising out of a motor accident in which Mr. Douglas George Hopkins, of Finchley, N., was killed. Lord de Clifford had already been acquitted by his peers, before whom he appeared at the House of Lords on December 12 of a charge of manslaughter.

No Evidence Offered

Mr. Christmas Humphreys, prosecuting, said: "Lord de Clifford is a peer of the realm, and this court has no jurisdiction at all to try him for felony. That being so, the coroner's inquisition and the justices' commitment for manslaughter were alike removed to the House of Lords."

"When Lord de Clifford was tried by his peers for manslaughter they found unanimously that there was no case for him to answer, and he was discharged. He stands to take his trial now upon the misdemeanour of dangerous driving, on precisely the same facts."

"He having been acquitted in those circumstances by his peers, I am instructed by the Director of Public Prosecutions to offer no evidence."

"Quite Hopeless"

Mr. Justice Charles: "I quite agree with the course which you have taken. I was myself sitting in the House of Lords, and I think it would be quite hopeless, after that acquittal, to proceed with the misdemeanour which now properly comes before this court."

Turning to the jury, the judge said: "You have heard what has transpired. The accused is entitled, in order that he might be cleared of all this trouble, to your verdict, and upon my direction you will find a verdict of not guilty."

After the jury had given their verdict Sir Henry Curtis Bennett, K. C. (for Lord de Clifford) made a statement regarding the anonymous letters.

Abusive Letters

"From the time he was committed for trial," said Sir Henry, "Lord de Clifford had been the recipient of a great number of anonymous and abusive letters, written to him in a strain accusing him of having put the country to a great deal of unnecessary expense in that he either elected to be tried at the House of Lords or that he had not waived his right to be so tried."

"I think one can safely say that anonymous letter-writers are either mad or bad. Certainly, if anyone had taken the slightest trouble here to ascertain the position, Lord de Clifford would have been saved the annoyance he has been put to for something like five months by receiving these letters."

"He Had No Right"

"The slightest inquiry would have shown that, being a peer of the realm and the charge being one of felony, he had no right to elect where he was tried, and he could not waive that right. He had by the law of the land to be tried by the House of Lords."

Mr. Justice Charles said: "I can assure Lord de Clifford before I discharge him—that the receipt of anonymous letters, although it might in some cases entail annoyance, does not really injure the recipient."

"I myself have received many hundreds of anonymous letters since I have been a judge, indicating complete disapprobation of my decisions. Of course, they are contemptible things—anonymous letters. In this case they were written by people who were not only contemptible, but abysmally ignorant."

"You are discharged."

OVERDOING IT!

Hopps beamed. "My dear fellow, it's too good of you. Competent? I should jolly well think you are! Why, I shall look upon you as my guide and teacher from now on. By the way, I put my pants on inside out this morning. Do you advocate leaving them like that?"

"Certainly! Whatever the circumstances. It's a sign of extreme good luck."

But Hopps arrived next morning looking very glum.

"The pants were not strong enough," he complained.

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that the bad influences were too powerful. The first thing I saw on getting out of bed was a great black crow sitting on my fence. Just one. He sat and sat and wouldn't move. I threw the hot-water bottle at him, but it didn't make any difference. Of course, I knew something awful was bound to happen after that. And it did. My wife had a letter from her parents to say that they are coming to live with us indefinitely."

"I say, that's too bad!" Dunderdale murmured. Then he brightened. "The only course for you to take," he advised, "is to let them come, and then frighten them away."

"The crows?" Hopps asked.

"No. The in-laws."

Hopps swallowed nervously. "But my wife's father is a big man. He was a blacksmith. And her mother is bigger still. I can't imagine them being frightened of me, somehow."

"Aha! But you can use magic. They will be fighting against potent and unseen forces."

Hope dawned in Hopps's eyes. "What must I do?"

"You must remember to leave and enter the house with your right foot first. That is essential. Then you must hang a sprig of holly over your bed to keep the evil spirits away. That'll do to go on with."

Hopps thanked him fervently and promised to do as he said.

I begged Dunderdale not to go too far with his light-hearted fun. After all, it was rather a slaughter of the innocent.

But Dunderdale didn't see it my way.

"Why worry?" he shrugged. "It makes poor old Hopps happy, doesn't it? All the same, I wish I could see him manoeuvring that garden path so that his right foot'll be free to step into the porch. His wife's people will think he's completely loopy. Pity we have to miss the fun."

We heard some of it from Hopps, however.

"My wife was very distressed about the holly. She doesn't

Cinema Notes

Miss Loy plays a head-line hunting, thrill seeking aviator, while Grant acts the role of a scientist of the air. His life work is the perfection of blind-flying and piloting devices that will make flight absolutely safe.

The two are first brought together when Miss Loy's brazen attempt to cash in on the publicity of Grant's trans-Atlantic flight forces his withdrawal from the project.

He attempts the flight again, but is blinded by an accident and flees to the woods for solace. Miss Loy, who has learned to love him, follows him to his hide-out, brings him one of the famous "Seeing Eye" dogs, and helps him to regain his self-respect and interest in his work.

Just as Grant is convinced that his experiments are reaching their climax he loses his plane because he lacks funds. As a last desperate gesture, Miss Loy undertakes a Moscow-New York flight for the $25,000 offered which will enable him to complete his work.

The flight is completed safely, but only through Grant's last-minute heroic efforts, during which he confesses his love.

HEADMASTER RETIRES

Mr. Morgan H. Phillips is retiring from the headmastership of Ruthin School, North Wales, founded by Dean Goodman of Westminster 300 years ago.

think it right to have holly except at Christmas."

Dunderdale laughed. "Well, we all have to suffer for our convictions. I hope it works."

But it didn't. Week after week went by, and Hopps grew pale and haggard.

At last Dunderdale went into conference with him.

"The time has come, Hopps, for sterner measures. I know of an infallible charm, if you can get it. You must procure two feathers—bantam feathers, and a virgin's tooth. I quote the old books. Now, having your charm, you must stick the feathers in your hair every night, hold the tooth in your hand, and chant these words—"

I can't remember the doggerel Dunderdale recited, but Hopps was enchanted with the idea.

He went into the country on the following Saturday, and chased half the hens of the county round their respective farmyards. He then visited a dentist friend and obtained from him a tooth which he was assured, belonged to an unmarried female client.

What actually happened was that he arrived at the Bank one morning looking as if he'd won first prize in a sweepstake.

"It's worked!" he cried.

"They've gone!" Dunderdale grinned, and shook hands with him.

"Congratulations!" Hopps hesitated, and blushed.

"There's—there's something else. Some more marvellous luck. The reason why they went is that my wife—that is, we are going to have a baby."

"Splendid!"

"My wife said she wouldn't have time for visitors now. My dear Dunderdale, I cannot express my gratitude. Home is home once more. And as for the baby—well, it's the only thing which has been lacking in our Garden of Eden."

"Glad to have been of assistance," Dunderdale said.

"And those feathers and that tooth," Hopps went on, dreamily, "they are among my most treasured possessions."

The months slipped by, and all Hopps was a changed man. All his omens were good. The world seemed full of black cats, and he never split even a grain of salt.

And then, one day, he was late coming to the Bank.

Dunderdale nodded wisely. "I know what's keeping him. When we see our little Hopps, he'll be a proud father."

At eleven-thirty Hopps walked in. He didn't skip in, or bounce in; he just walked.

We looked at him questioningly.

"Well?"

He shook his head sadly. "No doubt you acted for the best, Dunderdale. But you might have restrained yourself a little. You overdid it. Why two feathers?"

Dunderdale shook his head. "I don't understand."

Hopps sighed. "I am the father of twins."

"But that's wonderful. Congratulations, old chap!"

"No. One would have been sufficient. I'm not a millionaire. Multiply one cot by two, one education by two, one dress allowance by two. It's a depressing sum."

"Nonsense!" exclaimed Dunderdale, brusquely. "You're a lucky man, and you ought to be thankful. When did the little beggars arrive?"

"Just before I left. I didn't stay to see the second one."

"Mr. Hopps wanted on the telephone," a voice interrupted.

Dunderdale winked at me. "Isn't he a scream! I believe he really thinks—"

Hopps returned. His face was livid as he went to Dunderdale and gazed down at him. "I'm not sure, but I think he would have liked to murder him."

"What did you tell me to get?" asked Hopps, in a low, tense voice.

"Two feathers, and a tooth? Was that it? Two feathers and a tooth?"

"Why, yes," replied Dunderdale, surprised.

Hopps sat down and buried his face in his hands.

"Is anything wrong?" I inquired.

Hopps smiled, the bitter smile of a man whose stars have been tripped," he said.

PREPARED HIMSELF FOR KINGSHIP

Imaginative Leadership

"Do something" might with deference be put forward as the individual interpretation of his motto as Prince of Wales: Ich Dien. He has no time for the service that only stands and waits.

His idea of leadership is not a well-endowed passivity but an urgent, practical, well-informed, and shrewdly directed activity.

How often has he called for imaginative leadership; for a greater spirit of unselfishness and adventurous helpfulness; for travel as an aid of better understanding between nations?

The magic of "Edward P." as Prince of Wales is happily still at the service of his country now that he is King, and few can yet assess the measure of its greatness. It is a knowledge that ability, earnestness of intention, executive powers are as nothing worth without that personality and imagination which fuse these gifts into magnificent example and leadership.

King Edward VIII. knows that nothing can take the place of personality, and what is most vital to the nation—he possesses it himself.

That is why every speech he makes, every cause he sponsors, every improvement he suggests, develops.

That is why even the most alert leaders became more effective when told to "wake up thoroughly." That is why our King, who has typed many of his speeches in mid-air, is so valuable an apostle of the air-mindedness of which this nation stands in increasing need.

He knows, with the far-sightedness of a real ruler, that our future in peace or war must lie largely in the air.

NEW ANGLO-GERMAN NAVAL TREATY? SUGGESTED SOLUTION OF DEADLOCK

ITALY CONTINUES RELUCTANT

London, To-day.

A new Anglo-German naval treaty was mooted yesterday at the Naval Conference as a means of circumventing the threatened deadlock over the introduction of European political issues into the naval protocol.

In order to meet the French objections to inviting Germany to sign a naval treaty, it is suggested that Britain and Germany should negotiate a bi-lateral agreement on qualitative lines to supplement the existing treaty, which is quantitative. The matter is reported to have been discussed between Mr. R. L. Craigie of the Foreign Office and the German Naval Attaché yesterday.

working a silver mine in Peru in order to enrich our nation by bringing in this metal to our country."

The venture, however, proved a fiasco, and he returned to Japan, taking up work in a bank. His promotion from that time on was rapid, and in 1900 he became Vice-Governor of the Bank of Japan.

During the War with Russia, the future Minister of Finance was sent to Great Britain and America to raise War Loans. The abundant success of his mission was all the more remarkable because Japan's position in the international money market was, at that time, very insecure. His success has always been conceded as his greatest service to the State.

Mr. Takahashi came to be regarded as one of the greatest financial experts in Japan. In politics he was distinguished by his readiness to set his country's needs above all considerations of self, so much so that he thought it no derogation of his own prestige to serve under four different Premiers after having once held the Premiership himself; and, when close on 80 years of age, he came forward willingly once more to guide his country through the grave and perilous financial crisis with which it was faced.

VENERABLE FIGURE

A striking and venerable figure with his white beard and moustache, Mr. Takahashi was also an amiable personality.

He always disliked intrigue and was never really fitted by disposition to be a party politician. Force of circumstances in the shape of outstanding financial ability, however, brought him into the political arena; but it was to his reputation for impartiality and for putting the interests of the nation above those of party or self

Such a solution would bring Britain, the United States and France into line, and if Italy can be mollified the treaty can be signed and submitted to Japan later. Hitherto, however, Italy has shown no signs of yielding on her reluctance to sign a treaty while sanctions are operative. The Geneva discussions on oil sanctions next week are expected to have a big bearing on her attitude in London.—Reuter.

RESERVATIONS EXPRESSED

Paris, later: Signor Mussolini has intimated that Italy will be unable to sign a naval treaty as long as the British naval reinforcements remain in the Mediterranean, according to reports received in certain French circles.

It is stated that France is willing to sign, with the reservation that the agreement will only be implemented when the problems of air security are settled with Germany.—Reuter.

AUCTION SALE ABANDONED

Jazz Band Plays Lively Tunes

Glossop.—A jazz band formed from members of the Hadfield Social Centre placed in a farmyard at Hadfield last month when cattle and farming implements were due to be sold for a debt of over £20 for levies to the Milk Marketing Board.

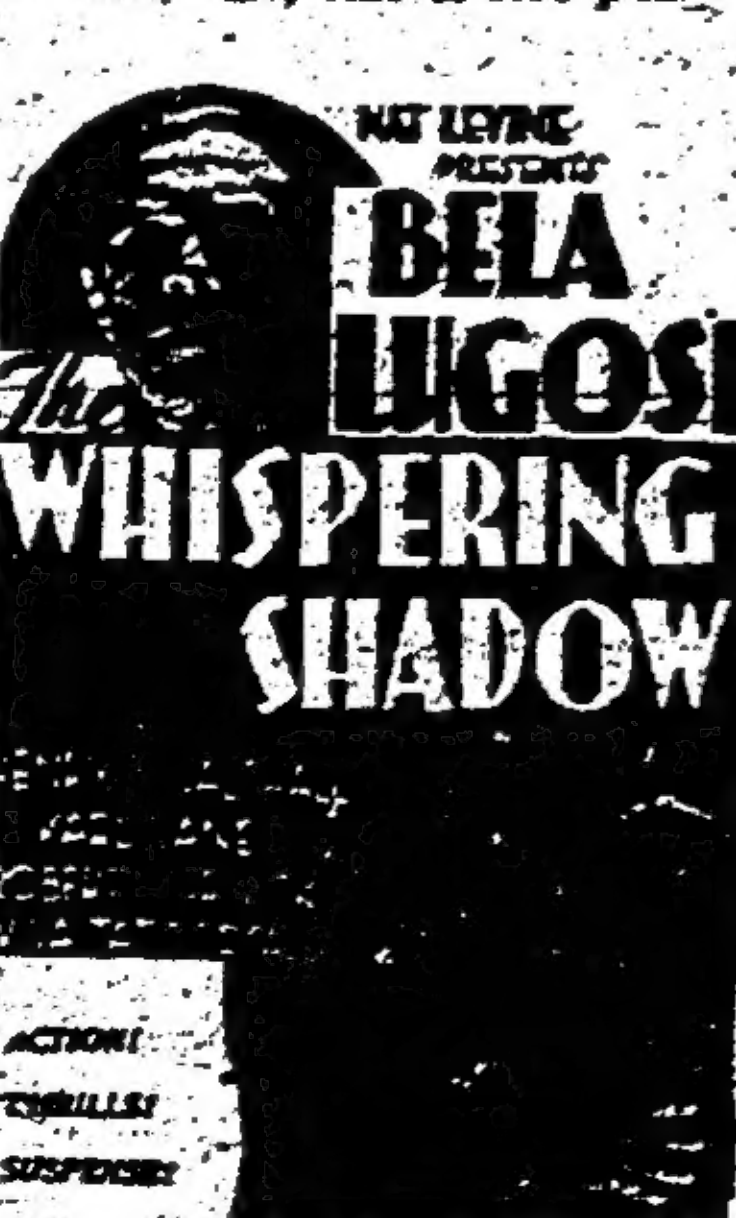

Members of the Stockport and District Milk Producers' Association, as well as many local farmers, were present.

Mr. J. H. Poole, chairman of the National Milk Producers' Association, made a speech in which he said that they were "experiencing once more the inhuman work of the Milk Marketing Scheme." He advised those present to make a nominal offer for the cattle of 3d. 6d or a maximum of 1s.

After an argument with the farmers, in which he asked them to guarantee him a proper price, the auctioneer called off the sale.

that, when a strictly non-partisan Finance Minister was wanted for the National Cabinet, Viscount Saito at once sought out the aged Mr. Takahashi and readily promised him a free hand if he would take the post.

Express Services In Germany

"CHINA MAIL" SPECIAL

Berlin, To-day.

The progress made in Germany in recent months in speeding up the express train service by the building of new types of modern streamlined locomotives, was stressed by a party of Press representatives, who, at the invitation of the railway administration, made the trip to Hamburg from Berlin and back in one of the super-trains.

The locomotive and the two streamlined coaches have a seating capacity of 215 passengers.—Trans-Ocean Service.

TWO DEATHS IN NURSING HOME

Inquest On Mother And Daughter

Nottingham.—The inquest was resumed at Nottingham last month into the deaths of Louisa Baguley, aged 87, a widow, of Burton Joyce, and of her daughter, Miss Ada Louisa Baguley, aged 52.

Both died in the same nursing home at Nottingham, the mother in May last and her daughter on September 11.

At an inquest on the daughter, which was opened and adjourned for the attendance of Nurse Waddington of Sherwood, Nottingham, it was stated that traces of arsenic were found in Miss Baguley's body. Later the body of the mother was exhumed at Causton, near Newark.
